DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 2, 16, and 24-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yatsuda.

Yatsuda discloses in fig. 2 a surface acoustic wave device with electrodes 36 having increasing width over their lengths. The reference discloses shapes that inherently controls the dispersion effect. The method of claims 25 and 26 are inherent in the device claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 30 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yatsuda.

Yatsuda discloses in fig. 2 a surface acoustic wave device with electrodes 36 having increasing width over their lengths. The reference discloses shapes that inherently controls the dispersion effect.

The reference does not disclose apodized electrodes.

The Examiner takes Official Notice that would have been well known in the art to use apodized electrodes for the purpose of weighting the output.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use apodized electrodes for the purpose of weighting the output.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 6-15, 17-20, 28, and 29 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the claims are directed to novel electrode shapes.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 7 February 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The Applicant argues that Yatsuda does not relate to interdigital transducers (IDTs), but in the next sentence states it "teach[es] about controlling delays of SAW waves between IDTs..." in the second paragraph of page 6. The Examiner does not fully understand what the Applicant is asserting in this paragraph. The Examiner agrees that Yatsuda does not teach the same function for the electrodes as the present invention, but the courts have found that claims directed to apparatus must be distinguished from the prior art in terms of structure rather than function. In re Danly, 263 F.2d 844, 847, 120 USPQ 528, 531 (CCPA 1959). "[A]pparatus claims cover what a device is, not what a device does." Hewlett-Packard Co. v. Bausch & Lomb Inc., 909

F.2d 1464, 1469, 15 USPQ2d 1525,1528 (Fed. Cir. 1990). It is the Examiner's position that the amended claim language, given its broadest reasonable interpretation, includes the structure of fig. 3 of the present invention and that fig. 3 of the present invention has the same structure as the device discloses in Yatsuda. Further, it is the Examiner's position that Yatsuda inherently discloses the same function because they have the same structure. The court has stated mere recognition of latent properties in the prior art does not render nonobvious an otherwise known invention. In re Wiseman, 596 F.2d 1019, 201 USPQ 658 (CCPA 1979) (Claims were directed to grooved carbon disc brakes wherein the grooves were provided to vent steam or vapor during a braking action. A prior art reference taught noncarbon disc brakes which were grooved for the purpose of cooling the faces of the braking members and eliminating dust. The court held the prior art references when combined would overcome the problems of dust and overheating solved by the prior art and would inherently overcome the steam or vapor cause of the problem relied upon for patentability by applicants. Granting a patent on the discovery of an unknown but inherent function (here venting steam or vapor) "would remove from the public that which is in the public domain by virtue of its inclusion in, or obviousness from, the prior art." 596 F.2d at 1022, 201 USPQ at 661.). Because the Yatsuda reference discloses all the structural limitations of the present invention, the rejection is maintained.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
